SAMPLE LESSON

Chapter 1 — Sentences that work

Every strong piece of writing is built from strong sentences. Before we structure paragraphs or essays, we make sure each sentence does its job: it says one clear thing.

- Complete thoughts. A sentence needs a subject and a verb — someone or something, and what they do.
- Vary the length. Short sentences punch. Longer ones explain. Good writing mixes both.
- Start differently. Not every sentence should begin with 'The' or 'I'. Vary your openings for rhythm.

TRY IT YOURSELF

Rewrite three short, choppy sentences into one flowing sentence — then back into three for emphasis. Notice how the effect changes.
